Susan Whale : Cut Foliage: A practical guide to its selection and care before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Cut Foliage: A practical guide to its selection and care:

An essential book on the selection and care of cut foliage -not just commercially available foliage but also selected garden foliage that is suitable for using in floristry and flower arranging. From Abies to Zea there are over 140 cut foliage featured in this easy to use publication which sells consistently to students around the world and is recommended by many leading floristry tutors. A page is devoted to each foliage and contains full care instructions, botanical information, tips on arranging and their suitability for design and wedding work. Also contains a glossary and index of common names. Each foliage is individually photographed in full colour. The book is A5 with a wipe clean cover, ideal for workbox or workroom.

About the Author Su Whale has been working in the flower industry for over 20 years. Based in a busy retail shop in Birmingham, UK. Su also works as a freelance writer and is the floristry editor for Interflora's Mercury Magazine, a position which involves covering major flower shows such as RHS Chelsea and Tatton Park and regular trips to flower events in The Netherlands and Germany. Su is a Fellow of the British Florists Association and holds the National Diploma in Floristry. In 2011 Su published her first book, 'Cut Flowers A practical guide to their selection and care' which has proved to be hugely successful, selling to florists, students, flower arrangers and flower lovers all over the world.
