John Osborne, Amanda Claridge : Early Christian and Medieval Antiquities: (Vol. 2) Other Mosaics, Paintings, Sarcophagi and Small Objects (The Paper Museum of Cassiano dal Pozzo. Series A: Antiquities and Architecture) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Early Christian and Medieval Antiquities: (Vol. 2) Other Mosaics, Paintings, Sarcophagi and Small Objects (The Paper

Museum of Cassiano dal Pozzo. Series A: Antiquities and Architecture):

This volume completes Part II of Series A of the Paper Museum. Together with the first volume, it reflects an unusual aspect of Cassiano's interests, but a particularly relevant one for modern scholars: the material remains of post-classical culture in Rome and the psychical inheritance from the earliest centuries of Christianity. Catalogued here is a diverse and fascinating range of antiquities: reliefs, inscriptions, sarcophagi, sculpture, manuscript illuminations, gold-glass, gems, ivories, lamps, metalwork and 'instruments of martyrdom'. The drawings were mainly collected by Carlo Antonio dal Pozzo, Cassiano's brother, in the later seventeenth century and include some of the finest examples of archaeological draughtsmanship of the period.
